As Far as anyone knows Jimmy Orion Ellis was not related to Elvis or Vernon.
He was adopted by The Ellis Family.

Jimmy Ellis in his later years did search out his birth parents as many do who are adopted. The only details as to their identity was that his Mothers name was Gladys Hughs(if i recall this correctly) and The only name for the father on the birth Certificate was Vernon(although i dont believe the last name was given on the birth Certificate but i honestly dont remember for sure.)

Supposedly the theory is Vernon Presley had a romantic entanglement with this Gladys Hughs woman while he was off working somewhere in mississippi(I forget where so i hope you will all bear with me as I am just trying to relay what i saw and was told)

Anyway this romantic interlude supposedly produced Jimmy Ellis
If this is true or not I dont know i wasnt there or even born at the time. I do know that Jimmy Ellis when he found this information out did not pursue anything else to verify whether or not he was related to Elvis in any way.
The quote i was given from a friend of his was that Jimmy felt if he was related to Elvis through Vernon that he wouldnt want to besmirch the Presley name with a scandal. Also if he wasnt related to The Presleys and he went forward and pursued it and nothing came of it or if he found out that he wasnt related it would wreck his good name and put him in the same level as others who have claimed that Elvis was their father. So he figured he would leave things as they were.

Was he related to Elvis through Vernon nobody knows but unless someone has definative proof it is best to leave it as it is rather than start some sort of scandal and through accusations around.

Hopefully this helps settle this.

it probably isnt true. I certainly have no way to verify it for sure other than that i have seen a copy of the birth certificate and those were the names on it.

That doesnt mean it was Vernon Presley however.

I just included the rest of the story i was told.if anyone could prove that story then great but untill then its just that a story

Therefore you are doing Elvis a dis-service.

As far as I am aware Allen,

Marty Lacker is indeed one of the people who knew Elvis pretty well. He has what appears to be total recall at times, but not everything he has ever said or written is true.

In later years, although Marty was once close to Elvis, Elvis grew to dislike Marty's personality.

Joe Espisito never lost favor with Elvis. However, I do not know all of the Memphis Mafia, so I cannot say for certain who was Elvis' best friend on earth.

Many people, know a lot about Elvis Presley and his life, up front, close personal and private. Marty is simply someone who enjoys being here, but just because the many other people do not enjoy spending their time this way, does not make him the know all tell all genius of the Elvis information world.

I disliked very much and made no bones about it, what he told in Revelations about Elvis' personal business. If of course it was even true. Talk about a "Dis service to the King" many of Elvis' closest tattled tales on him, and they have no right to take any credit...but should be ashamed!!

Just my opinion.

I for one, think that sometimes it's OK to beat up the handicapped.
I mean, you can give 'em parking permits and all, but that's no guarantee that they'll actually leave the house, so at that point- feel free to kick his pestly ass here because you won't find him in the plum parking spaces too often.
And really, most of those fake handicapped bastards need beatings just for scamming those ridiculous permits anyway.

I for one, think that sometimes it's OK to beat up the handicapped.
I mean, you can give 'em parking permits and all, but that's no guarantee that they'll actually leave the house, so at that point- feel free to kick his pestly ass here because you won't find him in the plum parking spaces too often.
And really, most of those fake handicapped bastards need beatings just for scamming those ridiculous permits anyway.
Thank you.

Your not welcome funny face.

It is never OK to beat up on the hadicapped, and I would go so far as to say it is not OK to beat up on anyone for any reason unless your life is in danger.

One day, you might wake up a normal human being (did I say human?) anyway, eat, shower, dress, go to work and POW! ZOoooooom! The worst crap you ever dreamt of takes you out.

I am not wishing any harm on anyone, just the opposite. I want you to understand that it is NOT OK to tease, use hurtful words or discusting antidotes just to please your whim.

Who in the hell do you people think you are? God?

If you are, then you better start looking behind you at that fallen angel named lucifer.

I'm close to putting you back into that filter as Pauley suggested.

All you do is clutter up this ng with your nonsensical ramblings.

Marty

You take it elsewhere you lying mean spirited A-hole!

You think your better than anyone else?

You think no one knew Elvis like you knew him?

Don't bother me, I know many people who knew Elvis very well...I knew him but not well. I never said I did.

If you had one braincell still making a spark Mr. Lacker, you would honestly make it worthwhile to all your fans (I am not one of them) to create your own websight. I promise you I will never visit.

As long as you are here rambling on and on about yourself and your privileded information, I am certain it is fine for any other person to do the same.

Do you own AEK?

You don't own me. You don't intimidate me, and I am tired to a point of sudden death...of your ugliness toward me or any "Little" individual who comes along.

Let me laugh my ass off, that Elvis fired you once again. Since you love the salt in the wounds more than most. Oh I almost forgot, I failed to insult you on Larry King performance that night didn't I? Guess why? I am nicer than you.

The best thing for everyone is to just filter them. The nonsense is never going to stop. They insist on staying for whatever reason even though they claim to be so miserable here. They really love all the attention they get. The way to really get to them and drive them nuts (very short trip) is to filter or stop responding. There is no other solution. Then it can just be the two of them going back and forth before it turns into a murder-suicide situation.

Shawn,

I looked for a siter of mine that my Mother gave up for adoption, when I finally had the proof she was real and was born...she was not named.

It was like a jane doe sort of tragic event. I have never located her.

Isn't it a little too odd, that if you remove all the crowns and the dyed black hair, or the tan....add to this Mother=Gladys and Father-Vernon.

I can see a great resemblance and in those days, as with my sister..

poor families could not afford to feed or clothe more than 1 or 2 children.

Tragically, Elvis died young..so did Jimmy Ellis. Odd coincidence his first name begins with "J" as well. And...Ellis-Elvis.....any blind person can figure this out. I know it isn't a popul;ar thought.

But put in the fact that he could sing like nobody but Elvis could.

Orion sounded nothing like Elvis. He had a much more metallic, 2 dimensional voice. When they were trying to push his version of "That's All Right" as some lost Elvis version, I could tell right off the bat that wasn't Elvis. Elvis had a much more complex, clear, full voice than I have ever heard any "imitator" try to duplicate.

I@webtv.net

That crap about his mother being named Gladys and his father being named Vernon was just bullshit put out there by Shelby Singleton to try to imply that Ellis was either Elvis's illegitimate brother or actually Elvis's twin, Jessie. This was done after the whole Orion fiasco fizzled.

Actually, I've seen quite a few, dated one, and one lived with me lol I have no problem with tribute artists...not the ones who do it as humor, you know, fat, fake hair, cheesy suits, etc., ... I never classified Jimmy as one, because when I first met him, I was 12-13 and he barely did anything Elvis and certainly did not sound at all like Elvis or remotely close. More into Lou Rawls, etc. We even spoke on the phone and he wanted me to finish touring with him til he found out how old I was. LOL (very mature for my age back then) Soooooo anyhow, when I saw him again, he was Orion..lost total respect for him. Saw him again..last time in the late 80's, Orion was gone...Jimmy was back...asked him wth happened and why that Orion stunt, and he laughed and said something about it paying the bills and it worked...I really wish he had remained true with himself....he was a good singer without dragging Elvis into it.
